

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a relay unit, a communication signal is blocked and separated by a separator inserted to a power line. The communication signal provided 5 from one end or another end of the separated power line through a switch is received by a receiver. The received communication signal is relayed by a processor, and the relayed communication signal is transmitted from a transmitter to the one end or the other end of the power line.